Italy's recent earthquake shock has cost her at least 20,000 lives and a property loss of $60,000,000.

The present war has cost the Prussians up to date 877,107 men killed, wounded and captured. Rather expensive this war game, for the common people and emperors will keep playing it just as long as these same common people keep on furnishing the victims and paying the bills.

Senator Burton has certainly not every make of auto we ever heard of whipped to frazzle when it comes to endurance. He talked continuously for six hours and ten minutes on Wednesday opposing the Government ship purchase bill and that talk was to a vast crowd of empty seats in the Senate Chamber. The Democrats plan to meet the filibuster led by Senator Burton by continuous day and night sessions without recess for lunch or dinner.

Mistakes? We all make em! Even printers and "make up" men! We just noticed one on the first run of the Tribune this week too late to change of course; a notice to the bankers of the county which appears on the first page of this week's issue bears the title "Notice To Farmers." Who's to blame? Why the whole force of course from the Editor down to "Zekes" the office cat. But its too late to change it now. And it's too late to tell you when you fall over a mistake of your own and how big and pompous and inclined to dignity a fellow is when he just barely brushes us against a mistake some one else has made! All this reminds us of its just as well to apply the Golden Rule in the matter of mistakes of other people.

INTERDEPENDENCE

"Nine years ago my farm was worth $195 an acre; today I'd have a hard matter to sell it at $187 an acre. It is 'too far from a live town'—so every farmer has said who wants to buy. He wants a place near schools and churches, where his children can have advantages. I have awakened to the fact that in helping to build the town down, it has cost me $5,600 in nine years."

The above statement is from an Iowa farmer by name Hans Garbus and this statement is the conclusion of a recital of this farmer's experience, which runs as follows: He began his farm career twenty-nine years ago with an old team and $60 in money; rented 80 acres, secured needed machinery and groceries from merchants in the nearby home town on credit; then began carrying his accounts over from one year to another until he was able to purchase a 40 acre piece of his own. As soon as he owned this few acres he began to order houses for their supplies, fancying themselves independent of the town and the merchants who had helped them to get their start and make their way to prosperity. This is what happened:

"Gradually our merchants loosened their stock of goods—for lack of patronage. Finally we began to realize that when we needed a bolt quickly for machinery or clothing for sickness or death, we had to wait and send away for it, which wasn't so pleasant. One by one our merchants moved to places where they were appreciated, and men of less energy moved here. Gradually our town has gone down in appearance, a number are empty; our schools, churches and walks are going down; we have no band, no library nor ball team. There is no business done in the town, and therefore, no taxes to keep things up. Hotel is closed for lack of travel. Go down to the depot when the train pulls in and you will see the sequel in mail order packages.

The mistake made by Mr. Garbus and his neighbors was that they were independent, when the facts of the case are that they were and always had been dependent upon the town and its business men for their success and prosperity. Instead of their "interdependence" it should have been "interdependence" upon which they fixed their minds. What is true in Iowa is true in every state in the Union. "American Independence" is for export, and in moderation at that. "American Independence" is absolutely essential to home progress and prosperity. We rise or fall together not as individuals or classes.
